

JPAS

Call for Papers:

June Edition of the *Journal of Pan African Studies

The Journal of Pan African Studies (www.jpanafrican.com) invites papers for a June 2010 edition on African-centered/Africana Psychology. Africana Psychology critically investigates and interrogates the life-worlds of people of African descent from an African-centered perspective. This special edition seeks articles that address issues of identity, education, health, clinical/counseling, criminal justice, sexuality/gender, methodology, racism/oppression, religion/spirituality and intellectual history. Suggested topics include (but are not limited to) the following: the rationale for African-centered Psychology, definitions and conceptual models/orientations in African-centered Psychology, history of the development of African-centered Psychology, African-centered Psychology in literature, the relationship between African spirituality/philosophy and African-centered Psychology, the relationship between history and cultural personality, psychological intervention and treatment with Black patients, media images and Africana identity, intelligence testing with Black populations, sexuality and sexism in Africana communities, the psychology of Africana leadership, the training of Black psychologists and the social viability of African-centered Psychology. We also welcome book reviews of recent and new publications within the domain of African-centered/Africana Psychology.

The selection criteria will involve: relevance to theme, clarity of paper, intellectual significance, and originality. Participants must send a 50 word abstract by February 1, 2010 and their paper by April 1, 2010 (the paper and abstract must include participant name, affiliation, paper title, and e-mail address) to the Guest Editor. The paper should not exceed 25 pages via MS word. Notification of acceptance will be provided at least 30 days after receipt of abstract/paper.

Contact:

DeReef F. Jamison, Guest Editor
Email: jamisond@savannahstate.edu

About the *Journal of Pan African Studies

The Journal of Pan African Studies works to become a beacon of light in the sphere of African world community studies and research, grounded in an interdisciplinary open access scholarly peer-reviewed construct, simultaneously cognizant of the multilingualism of our audience, and the importance of universal access in cyberspace; regardless of geography, economic, social or cultural diversity.

For more information on the Journal of Pan African Studies, visit our website at: www.jpanafrican.com.