

The International Journal of Africana Studies, an annual refereed journal of the National Council for Black Studies, Inc. focused on the interrogation of Africana people and societies from the perspective of the African American is accepting manuscripts for its Spring 2016 edition at: info@ncbsonline.org. The journal focuses on examining the historical realities, organizational and political behavioral and socio-economic dynamics and cultural practices of African people. The Journal also promotes scholarly debate and research on issues relating to the African global experience, and will only publish original scholarly papers and creative works which focus on critical issues confronting Africana development and humanity and which demonstrate rigorous and thorough research.

